Risk Warning

Day trading and investing in financial markets involve significant risks. You should only use funds that you are prepared to lose entirely. It is strongly advised not to fund trading activities with essential savings, such as retirement funds, student loans, second mortgages, emergency funds, or money earmarked for critical life expenses. According to the Federal Trade Commission, day trading with less than $50,000 may significantly impair your ability to achieve profitability, and even with an investment exceeding $50,000, success is not guaranteed.
