

Peachy Investor Co. Terms & Conditions

You agree to all of the statements listed below by becoming a member of the peachy investor community.

All content shared via the Peachy Investor or any of it's employees is for educational purposes only. This is not financial advice and you are solely responsible for your own investments. By being a member of the peachy investor community you agree to this statement and forfeit all right to blame anyone else other than yourself for any losses occurred. Day Trading is risky and it is solely up to you to manage that risk properly.

The course content is only accessible as long as you are a paying active member. You do not get life time access to the courses and will lose access once your membership is terminated.

Any Bully like behavior to our staff or other members will be grounds for immediate termination with no refund. We pride ourself in keep a positive environment for students and will not tolerate this behavior.

There is a no refund policy due to all the course content being accessible to members for free once joining. No refunds will be granted under any circumstances. You are responsible for cancelling your membership before your next bill date, we have a no commitment policy for this reason.